

EED WEEKLY EMAIL

DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERING EDUCATION

Week of February 25th, 2019

Birthday wishes to Heidi Frye! (Feb. 29th)

Upcoming Events

- We are delighted to host Dr. Julie P. Martin, Associate Professor at Clemson University's Department of Engineering & Science Education, on Thursday, February 28. Her talk, "Centering a Marginalized Student's Voice Through Autoethnography", where she will compare and contrast the academic trajectories of Chavone Garza and Dr. Martin as she collaborated with Garza. The talk will highlight the non-linearity and "messiness" inherent in both. Dr. Martin will ask the audience to join in thinking about how stories like Chavone's could be used to challenge our institutions to move from merely accommodating students with varied lived experiences to being fundamentally inclusive of all students. The talk will be held in Hitchcock Hall 410 from 10:30-11:30a.m. followed immediately by a 30 minute informal Q&A. We want to encourage members of the EED to engage during the informal question and answer sessions at Hitchcock Hall 410 and the meet and greets: 1:30-2 and 2:30-3p.m. in Hitchcock Hall 244G. This is an opportunity for members of the EED community to offer feedback about senior faculty hires.
- Please join us for this week's seminar series with guest speaker Marisa K. Orr Associate Professor at Clemson University. The title of the seminar is "Self-regulated decision-making competency as a predictor of major choice and persistence in engineering".
  - Friday March 1st, 2019
  - Scott Labs E103
  - 10:20-11:15am
