- The Academy of Teaching is accepting proposals for its annual Conference on Excellence in Teaching & Learning until (1/22). They invite proposals from members of the Ohio State teaching community for presentations on any topics related to enhancing the quality and effectiveness of university teaching and student learning. This year's conference theme is Embracing Time and Change. Learn more and submit
- The College of Engineering is pleased to announce that Mary Leist is the new Director of Academic Advising in the College of Engineering. Mary is transitioning into this role from the Department of Civil, Environmental and Geodetic Engineering where she served as Coordinator of Academic Advising. Mary brings both a wealth of advising experience and a license as a professional counselor to the role. She will be taking a lead role in developing and supporting our advising functions across the college as we continue the transition into the new classification structure for advisors. The college is excited to have Mary as a part of the UESS team and please join them in welcoming her.
